PregWatch: Cate Blanchett plays with sons Dashiell and Roman

Cate Blanchett was photographed by Australia's Who Magazine on March 9th playing outside with her children Dashiell, 5 and Roman, 3. Cate was sporting a bit of a bump which got the rumor mill turning. Cate has previously said she would like to have four children but has said she and her husband, Andrew Upton, are "still discussing it."

Australian CBB Reader Elizabeth wrote to us: "She's wearing a shirt-dress type thing and isn't looking as...svelte as she normally does. There's definitely a round belly going on. I wonder why no-one else seems to have noticed when most mags normally jump on those baby-bump rumours. She and hubby Andrew Upton are doing a full-time move back to Aus next year to take up jobs as Directors of the Sydney Theatre Company - it would be great timing to have a bub."

Dashiell's wearing a David Bowie t-shirt, and all are wearing sunhats.

Cate is carrying a bicycle that has no pedals which is great for teaching children as young as two years old to ride a bike without resorting to training wheels. When first learning to ride, they use it like a hobbyhorse, and as they become more comfortable, they start to walk, then run with it, and eventually, they learn to balance. You can purchase one just like it from LikeABike (starting at $245).

Have you used a pedal-less bike to teach your child how to ride?

Do you think Cate is pregnant?
